

YELLOW, GREEN, BLUE

TIPS ON HOW TO SORT PROPERLY

BLUE CONTAINERS

What belongs in them?

- newspapers, magazines
- office paper
- advertising flyers
- books (without hardcover), notebooks
- boxes, cardboard, cartons, paper packaging
- egg cartons
- toilet paper rolls

What doesn't belong in them?

- wet, greasy, or otherwise soiled paper
- carbon and wax-coated paper
- paper fused into foil
- used diapers and feminine hygiene products
- used paper towels and tissues

How to dispose of paper?

Please flatten boxes – this way, more of them will fit into the container. Place paper loosely, without packaging, bags, or string. Office staples and book bindings are fine.

YELLOW CONTAINERS

What belongs in them?

- plastic packaging of all kinds (PET bottles, containers, food packaging, plastic containers for cosmetics or laundry detergents, bags, plastic wraps, plastic products). Polystyrene – smaller pieces
- beverage cartons for milk and juice (TETRAPAK)
- metal food packaging

What doesn't belong in them?

- packaging with food residues
- dirty polystyrene food trays
- packaging from chemicals and hazardous substances
- PVC pipes
- flooring materials
- large pieces of polystyrene (belong to waste collection centers)

How to dispose of waste

Plastic packaging must be empty; washing them is not necessary. PET bottles, as well as other bulkier plastic packaging (just like aluminum cans), please crush. Thanks for saving space.

GREEN-WHITE CONTAINERS

What belongs to clear glass:

- Jars from jams, compotes, and ketchup (without food residues and liquids)
- Broken glass jars
- Bottles of alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages

What belongs to colored glass:

- Bottles of alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages
- Plate glass from windows and doors, even if clear

What doesn't belong in them?

- Ceramics, ceramic and other clay containers
- Porcelain
- Automotive glass
- Mirrors
- Safety glass with wires
- Gilded and plated glass
- Returnable deposit glass (return to the store)

How to dispose of glass?

Glass must be without contents. Washing is not necessary. Labels or stickers, metal lids, or cork stoppers are not a problem.
